SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) -- POLICE MONDAY INVESTIGATED THE DISCOVERY OF $50,000 WORTH OF COMPONENTS STOLEN FROM A SILICON VALLEY FIRM AND FOUND AT ANOTHER COMPANY'S BOOTH AT THIS WEEKEND'S CPH'88 COMPUTER FAIR HELD AT THE MOSCONE CONVENTION CENTER.

SCOTT ANDERSON, PRESIDENT OF JADE COMPUTER PRODUCTS, SAID HE DISCOVERED THE COMPONENTS SUNDAY WHILE VISITING THE BOOTH OF ITAT ASSOCIATES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

HE SAID HE ALERTED SECURITY GUARDS AND POLICE WHEN HE FOUND THE COMPONENTS, STOLEN EIGHT MONTHS AGO FROM THE SUNNYVALE FIRM AS PART OF A $100,000 BURGLARY.

NO ARRESTS WERE MADE, BUT POLICE LAUNCHED AN INVESTIGATION.

THE INCIDENT WAS THE ONLY MAJOR BLEMISH ON CPH'88, A THREE-DAY FAIR THAT BROUGHT OUT MORE THAN 60,000 PEOPLE -- THREE TIMES THE NUMBER EXPECTED -- DESPITE STORMY WEATHER.

THE 250-PLUS EXHIBITS RANGED FROM THE MICROCOMPUTER INDUSTRY GIANT, DIGITAL RESEARCH, THE COMPANY THAT CREATED CPH (CONTROL PROGRAM FOR MICROCOMPUTERS, THE "BASIC TRAINING" THAT ENABLES COMPUTERS TO COMPUTE), TO THE PICKLES AND TROUT, A TWO-MAN BUSINESS THAT GOT ITS START BECAUSE THE NAME SOUNDED SO GOOD.
